

Easy/Tough to Love

What to do:

- Copy the following pages on cardstock and cut apart.
- Prepare for each small group.

Easy or Tough to Love

Candy fell everywhere from the birthday piñata. Your best friend quickly filled his pockets and cried when he was asked to share.

Easy or Tough to Love

Your friend always asks what you would like to play first. He is really cool about waiting on what he really wants to play.

Easy or Tough to Love

Your neighbor always has to win at the games that you play or she gets really mad.

Easy or Tough to Love

Nick notices that you are having a tough time in math. He offers to help you during recess.

Easy or Tough to Love

You drop your lunch box at school and all of your food scatters on the floor. The classmate behind you laughs and calls you clumsy.

Easy or Tough to Love

You have tripped over your untied shoelaces. Anna rushes over to see if you are all right and helps you up.

Easy or Tough to Love

It is your first day at your new school. A couple of kids have already made you feel very welcome.

Easy or Tough to Love

Mike invited you over to play his new video game, but he played the entire time. When you asked for a turn, he told you that he wanted to beat the game.

Easy or Tough to Love

You have noticed the neatest quality about your friend Jill. Every time you are over at her home, she asks if she can get you anything to drink or a snack.

Easy or Tough to Love

You hear your friend of three years laughing and making fun of you on the playground.

Easy or Tough to Love

Charlton always encourages you in P.E. when you play volleyball. He tells you that it is all right if you can't get it over the net and cheers for you anyway because you are on his team.

Easy or Tough to Love

You are in front of your class telling about your favorite book. You hear laughter from the back of the room. Later you find out that your classmate was making fun of your new haircut.

Easy or Tough to Love

Your friend Kinsey put a homemade card on your desk for you this morning. She is so thoughtful. She remembered that it was your birthday.
